Bicycle riding is not the only athletic sport in which Washington is interested.

There are several boating and cance clubs here, which have a great many members, most of whom take an active interest in all out-of-door sports. The Columbia Athletic Club is the most prosperous of these. It has delightful club quarters down-town, a boathouse on the river, and a lease on a big island in the middle of the Potomac where tennis, baseball, racing and other sports are carried on seven days in the week.

A FAMILY BICYCLE.

The little one's feet hung down in front, quite clear of the wheel and the running gear of the machine, and he sat very still so as not to disturb the equilibrium of the rider. There was little jolting over the smooth asphalt of Pennsylvania avenue, and the little passenger was safe enough on the eminence he occupied, and apparently quite happy. The additional weight added but little to the task of the rider. It takes but a slight effort to propel a bicycle over the even pavements of Washington. And do duty as a family carriage.

I have seen this device adopted heretofore by men but this is, I think, the first time that a woman has ventured to use it. There are several men in the departments here who take their children riding with them on their bicycles. One of them puts a pad for the little one on the backbone of the machine directly in front of the saddle. This position is hardly so comfortable as the other, but it is a bit safer.

BOOM FOR THE BABY. There is one man with a tricycle of standard make who has built an extension seat on his machine for the accommodation of his baby. It is not at all uncommon to see a little wheel in front and a big one behind, the second rider stands on the little step near the hub of the big wheel, or on the foot-rests on what is known as the "back-bone," in front. There is so little effort needed in propelling the machines that the passenger is not a burden.

These smooth asphalt streets tempt people to do all manner of odd things. Boys go to and from school on roller skates on the principal business streets of the city. On Capitol Hill they delight to "coast" down the smooth carriage drives. The favorite style of "coasting" is to take off one skate and sit on it, crossing the foot from which it was taken over the opposite knee, so that it will be clear of the ground. Walking up to the Capitol you are very likely to meet one PEARS'

Gen. Mahone a Bad Man Only Since He Became a Republican.

A PITTSBURGER'S VIRGINIA VISIT Reveals Features Favorable to the Dominion's Little Boss.

SCENES AND INCIDENTS DOWN SOUTH

(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE DISPATCE.) CHRISTIANSBURG, MONTGOMERY Co., VA., October 4 .- At the last election in this county the Republicans carried their ticket by a small majority, and in consequence both parties are actively engaged in the canvass for Governor. General Mahone and others were at Radford, on New river, on Monday and aroused a deal of enthusiasm, which is spreading like leaven in favor of

It is indeed amusing to hear some of the arguments against Mahone. When a Democrat he was lauded to the skies by Democrats, but, presto change! When a Republican "he is regarded as a bold, bad man" by Democrats. Said one Democrat: "How can you support a man who issued an order for the discharge of every man who did not vote the Republican ticket?" Said George Lynch, in response: "Well, I'll tell you how that was. When my foreman told me of the order I said I would quit at once, and threw down my shovel. My foreman at once announced that no such order had been issued by General Mahone—that it was merely talk of underlings, and had been twisted into an order to scare the

WOULD VOTE FOR A SNAKE By the way, the man Lynch referred to is a notable character. He told some Demo-crats that if the Republican party nominated a "snake" he would vote for him. Lynch is a stalwart Republican, and has two sons studying for the ministry. Your correspondent asked concerning his methods of conducting a campaign, and learned that whenever any of his colored friends went back on the party and their promises to him he usually gave them a "flogging" ight to remind them of their dereliction and to get them in line for the next time. He wanted to impress them that the direction in which their interests lie is the Republican party. He laughed as he said he merely chastened them-he did not hurt them much-he was merely looking after their best interests. He is quite popular with the colored people, and a man of con-siderable intelligence. The fact that the Democrats thought General Mahone an ideal politician when he belonged to that is accepted by the colored people as proof that he is to trusted as the head of the Republican ticket. He will carry Mongomery county unless all signs fail.

ALL CRAZY FOR LEARNING. General Mahone is in favor of a liberal policy in the matter of free public schools, and it is an encouraging sign of the times to notice how eager the colored people are for the education of their children. An instance of this may be cited in the person of Anderson Watkins, now 52 years old, who for 28 years was a slave, near Salem, Va. When emancipated he came North—to this place—and when Captain Schaeffer's school was opened (referred to in previous correspondence) his children, old and young, were compelled to trudge over the mountains nearly two miles, in all kinds of weather, for their "little learning." Now they are bright children. Your correspondent walked along this path worn by these children to the cabin of Watkins, and on two Sundays had the pleasure of reading to father and mother can read, but they appreciate and seemingly enjoy everything read to them. The second Sabbath your correspondent visited the cabin a number of colored people had been called in to listen to the reading of the sermon, and in like manner will they gather every Sabbath. So intensely eager was Watkins to learn that on one occasion he was presented with a copy of Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," and Sabbath after Sabbath he visited different white friends and had them read a chapter or two until the marvelous volume was completed. Such thirst for knowledge is what causes Captain Schaeffer and other Northern gentlemen to do all they can for Junkin is a Democrat, and has resided here for many years. Nearly all the summer visitors here-Royal Kersey overcoats, medium weight, silk-faced, Italian lining and satin sleeve abouts have returned home. Judge Staples, of Richmond, who argued the celebrated linings, sizes from 33 to 48 breast measure; regulars, stouts, fats and extra sizes for $13. Mr. Johnson, of Leetsdale, Pa., and family returned two weeks since.

D. Simpson, noticed in a former letter. By the way, Mr. Simpson was for a number of years one of the leading school principals of Pittsburg and Allegheny, having been in charge of the South Pittsburg (now the Thirtieth ward) School; subsequently the First ward, Pittburg, and later the First ward, Allegheny. When he removed here from Lawrence county he drove overland. He is a strong Republican, and took an active part in the Garfield campaign. He was denounced as a miscegenist, and on his barouche, when he went to church, were chalked derisive caricatures. One of his sons afterward wore to church on Sundays, on the lappel of his coat, a badge represent ing the caricature aforesaid. Finally a younger son of Mr. Simpson was knocked nsensible by a rock thrown by a "nigger hater" and thereafter the strife ceased. Mrs. Simpson is now and has been President of the Ladies' Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church for seven years, and the ladies will not consent to her withdrawal under any circumstances. Miss years ago, for essaying to teach black children, is equally popular. She was away two years teaching in Honolulu, and now has two sisters in the far-away Hawaitan Islands, teaching. American talent is in demand on these islands. The young ladies referred to received the very highest salaries paid for instructors, and had their traveling expenses repaid. Central America, too, has drawn upon this little place for educators, a Miss Figgett, a Southern lady. having been engaged at a salary of $1,100 per annum. One good effect of taking a native Virginian to a new locality is to broaden his or her views of people and country, and Miss Figgett thinks that there country, and hiss Figgett thinks that there are good people and good climes outside of Virginia. The aptness of a remark on the stump by Mr. Simpson may be here applied. His opponent concluded with a brilliant peroration in which he thanked God he was a "native of Virginia," and not an importation. Mr. Simpson merely said

DIXIE'S QUEER IDEAS. he thanked God he was a native of the United States, amid great applause.

REMARKABLE GROWTH. Mr. Will Simpson and his brother Ed-ward are civil engineers on the employ of the Norfolk and Western Railway Company, and are engaged laying out several new towns on this line. In fact, new towns are springing up its entire length, and with the good feeling prevailing among blacks and whites and the progress in the matter of education, Virginia bids fair to take her place in the sisterbood of Republicanism and the pyramid of rich and prosperous States of the country.

Montgomers, White Sulphur Springs, are

Montgomery White Sulphur Springs, are seven miles from Christiansburg. A drive to this spot and its lovely environs is grand. The site contains 1,542 acres of ground, and it is two miles from Big Tunnel station on the N. & W. Railroad. A horse car connects with every arriving train. The Springs Hotel should have remained open until October 1, but closed two weeks earlier on account of the wet, cold weather, of which there has been an abundance Nearly 300 guests were registered during August, and the season was about as prosperous as that enjoyed by summer resorts generally. Mr. Fagg, one of the managers, was on the grounds, and your correspondent and friends were allowed every courtesy at the various springs and over the grounds

SOME FAMOUS RESORTS. Yellow Sulphur Springs property contains about 800 acres, lies higher in the mountains and is a beautiful and healthful place. It was still open on September 20, but the guests, were rapidly thinning out. The rater at both springs is exceedingly healthful, and about all the guests do is eat, sleep, drink and bathe. Pennsylvania's quota of guests came from Philadelphia principally. Allegheny Springs, on New river, is 11 miles distant. It is the most recently developed summer resort, but was quite popular this season.

When Generals Averill and Crook were at Christiansburg during the war, raiding and burning stations and bridges, their objective point was Saltville, 80 miles south of here. At this point were obtained the entire salt supplies for the Confederate armies. They were unsuccessful, however, in cutting off this place, but were prevented from any well-defined effort by the close of the strife. One other point worthy of mention, and which visitors from the North all desire to see, is Salt Pond Mountain, 24 miles south.

On the top of this peak is this strange pond.

It was once a deer lick, but in time it became enclosed, and a beautiful lake adorns
it. The lake is more than a mile long and OF GREAT DEPTH. A summer hotel has been erected on the mountain, but it closes early in September. Riding over the lake in a small rowboat, one can see in the clear water the tops of the trees, growing from deep down in the ravine. A few miles below the waste of the lake forms the most beautiful cascades, and every visitor to the mountain views these wonderful talls and amuses himself or herself "killing rattlesnakes." A sojourn in the delightful mountains and valleys of Virginia is indeed healthful, and your correspondent will return to busi-ness, after three months' enforced absence, very much invigorated, and with stron hopes for the rapid development of the Ole ninion. Her mountains contain magnificent lumber in great abundance, and abound in the richest minerals, and her valleys pour forth the rarest medicinal rhile the slopes and valleys have been and are being rapidly converted into fine producing farms. A little more Northern energy and capital and the future of Virginia can easily be predicted. It is VERY CAUTIOUS NOW The President is in No Hurry About a Pension Commissioner.

The Experience of One of the New Dispensers of Patronage. BICYCLE RIDING AT THE CAPITAL

CORRESPONDENCE OF THE DISPATCH. 1 WASHINGTON, October 6.-Politics will reep into conversation at Washington even at this dull season. A great deal of comment was caused here as elsewhere by the deliberation of the President in selecting a successor to Commissioner Tanner. The necessity for filling the vacancy as rapidly as possible was conceded by all. The day that the Commissioner's resignation was accepted Secretary Tracy wrote to Secretary

Noble a little note urging the advisability of making the appointment and the annonncement of it at an early day. But the President went about the matter with a great deal of deliberation. It is characteristic of his action in many cases. He seems to move with more deliberation than any of his predecessors allowed themselves. Many cases are known where the commission had been made out and still the appointment was not announced for weeks. President Cleveland inaugurated the system of personal inspection of applicants for place. President Harrison is following in some degree the system of Cleveland, and then in greater degree a system of espionage of his own. It was only natural, of course, that, having made one mistake in the Pension Office, he should not take many chances mented on, is his apparent desire to intro-duce into office the younger element of the Republican party.

of making another. Another peculiarity of the President which has been much com-

TURN ABOUT FAIR PLAY. He has shown on more than one occasion a disinclination to appoint men to offices which they held under other Republican administrations, and from which they were removed for partisan reasons. He is quoted as saying to one of his friends who came to him to recommend a man for reinstatement. him to recommend a man for reinstatement "I would like to appoint this man. He has done a great deal for the party from time to time. But I am getting tired of seeing s certain class of people going around com-munities with collars on their necks en-titling them to hold office by some divine or hereditary right." These were not, per-haps, the President's words, but I believe they express his sentiments on the subject perpetual office holding. office-seekers whom I have assisted to places, and I think they will probably be my last," said a good Republican who is engaged in business in this city. "The first case that came within my experience," he continued, "was that of a man from my own town whom I had known for many years, and with whose wife I had gone to school. He was in rather hard luck, and I promised his people to get him a place here in one of the Departments, if possible. I succeeded in getting him a place with a good salary attached. He came on here and I called at his house once or twice. He has been here two or three years now and I have not heard him say 'thank you' yet. He was in my office one day to ask the location of another man, but he did not stop. My SECOND EXPERIENCE was with a man living at my home. He wanted a place in the railway mail service as distributing clerk on one of the cars. I succeeded in obtaining for him instead a place as transfer clerk at his home, where he season in Louisiana opened October 1. There is one uncertain feature this season would have less work to do and where his expenses would be less. It paid a little less than the place he wanted. I saw him shortly after the appointment was made and he told me he was not satisfied with it and that he was going to ask to be given the other place. He wanted that or nothing. I asked the General Superintendent to give him nothing, and that is what he got. My third experience was with a man who wanted to get an Indian school. He was not entitled to that or tween them and the planters, but the latter anything else, and he had no claim on me, but for the sake of his family I put in some work for him. I was surprised the other day to hear that he had received the appointally the number of worms have been kept down by a steady battle against them with or with such good effect, and enough poison has been scattered over the Southern cotton ment. I have never heard from in regard to it. I think I am out of the office-seeking business now."

Female bicycle riders are becoming particularly the partridges, become wonder-fully fat feeding on the little insect. They find him loaded this year—well loaded, with arsenic, and the result has been to kill numerous, I see, in other cities than this, in which the woman's bicycle was first used. New York and Brooklyn are furnishing their share of daring women who prefer good, athletic exercise to sedentary uselessness even at the risk of violating the con ventionalities of so-called "society." Of course I do not all ude to the professional bicycle women who appear in tights and trunks and ride the machines which were originally devised for the use of men. I am speaking of the women who are riding the > little attention here to-day as the Chinamen who parade the city arrayed in robes of purple and violet and crimson silk. But Washington, which originated the safety bicycle for women, has now brought out something which is not known in other cities where women ride the two wheels, ! will venture to say. It is the "family bicycle, a modification of the woman's safety. I saw one of them this morning. A slender, athletic little woman, clad in green with a felt cap on her head, sat on the high saddle of a safety bicycle. To the steel rod which connected the handle bar of the ma> chine with the front wheel was fastened a light but strong seat. It was quite narrow -just wide enough to hold a little child of perhaps three years of age who was occupy-of these small boys coming down the pave-ment cross-legged, apparently sliding on the base of his trousers.

The tricycle is put to various commercial uses as well as to those of pleasure. A number of stores make delivery of goods by tricycle. A big basket is fastened between the large wheels in front of the rider. Seven eral postmen use it in the delivery of the mails. I believe this was the first commer-cial use to which the bicycle was put in England.

A NEW CANDY STAND. There is a man who keeps a small candy stand on a tricycle. He travels about the city making sales from the saddle. Two negroes have built a quadricycle car for pas-sengers, which can be seen on the avenue any bright night. The two men sit behind one another on the front of the machine, and Capitol, for a fare of 5 cents each.

I was much interested at one time in a bit of filial devotion displayed on a tricycle. Every afternoon at 4 o'clock a double tricycle, or "sociable," propelled by a pretty young girl, would come to the entrance of one of the departments. From the building would come on crutches a one-legged watch-

The club is building a magnificent clubhouse just above the State Department building, convenient to almost all of the departments, which will be completed about February 1. John McLean, of the Cincinnati Enquirer, who owned the ground on which the clubhouse is being built, gave the club easy terms of payment and then subscribed $10,000 toward the building. It will It is not surprising that there should be such a taste for athletics here. The em-ployes of the Government have plenty of business hours, and during their stay in the departments they have so little opportunity to "stretch" themselves that they are eager for a chance to run and jump when freed from the thraldom of work. Except in rare instances, department employes leave their desks at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. This gives them, in the summer, three or four hours to devote to exercise. them go for a pull on the river; others for a game of ball; some to practice with the dumb-bells, the clubs and other athletic implements. A very large number play ten-nis. There are tennis clubs and tennis grounds all over the city. I suspect that the social feature of the game rather than its advantage as a means of exercise en-dears it to the majority of those who play.
